Here and There

Editorial By ALEX. H. WASHBURN

HOPE, decked out in the foliage of summer, is a naturally beautiful city, with long, shady streets, and shrub-adorned front yards. From the city-hall lawn down to the humbler private dwellings, there is evidence of a strong desire to make this one of the most attractive communities that greets the tourist's eye on his journey across Arkansas.

"New Deal" Gets Two-to-One Vote on Digest's Poll

20 % of Roosevelt's 1932 Support Is Turning Against Him

45,000 VOTES CAST
Digest Announces First Count on Total of 15 Million Ballots

Nearly a 2 to 1 vote of confidence is registered for President Roosevelt's policies "on the whole" in the returns of the Literary Digest's 15,000,000-ballot poll on the approval or disapproval of the Administration's New Deal.

The initial figures include 44,999 votes from the three eastern states of New York, New Jersey and Pennsylvania.

20,724 ballots, or 66.19 per cent of the total, are tallied "Yes" in answer to the question, "Do you approve of the whole the acts and policies of Roosevelt's first year?" 15,185, or 33.8 per cent, voted "No" to the query.

20 Per Cent Drop

An analysis of how the same voters voted in 1932 shows that 19.22 per cent of those who were for Roosevelt two years ago disapprove his policies now while 80.78 per cent who voted for him then support him now.

41.23 per cent of those who voted for Hoover in 1932 now vote in support of the Administration's program while 58.77 per cent of the Hoover followers vote against the Roosevelt acts and policies.

Of the 39,445 ballots received from New York state 26,506, or 67.20 per cent voted that they support the Roosevelt policies while 12,939, or 32.80 per cent, answered that they disapprove the acts of the New Deal.

Of the 4,654 ballots mailed back from New Jersey voters 2,332 or 57.23 per cent vote in support of Roosevelt policies and 1,732, or 42.72 per cent, vote against them. New Jersey registers the strongest opposition vote among any of the three states tallied in the early returns.

1,410 ballots were received from Pennsylvania, or which 896, or 63.55 per cent, voted affirmatively, and 514, or 36.45 per cent, voted negatively.

Of the total vote of 39,445,522 cast in the 1932 Presidential election, Mr. Roosevelt then received 57.32 per cent to Hoover's 35.59 per cent.

Results Too Early

"It would be rash to jump to the conclusion," the Literary Digest states editorially, "that the ultimate verdict of the referendum of 15,000,000 ballots, now in process of distribution over the entire country, is foreshadowed in this handful of early returns."

"The complexion of the poll this week may be transformed at any moment during succeeding weeks, as the return tide of ballots swells by degrees to its full strength and all the states contribute their quotas to the tabulation."

"Nevertheless the first figures will be studied with speculative interest, especially in the light of the Presidential election figures of 1932."

"The Literary Digest advises its readers to suspend judgement as to the continuance of Mr. Roosevelt's high score of 66.19 per cent in the present slight and sketchy report of the poll."

"Strange coincidences bob up in the handling of numbers. Some chance as rare as a 'perfect hand' at bridge may have given the President in this straw poll, up-to-date, the appearance of a proportional lead far exceeding that of his landslide of 1932."

Many Comments

"The balloting opponents of the New Deal are expressing their hostility with a vigor which suggests a hot and well matched fight. Their letters breathe determination. Some of them scribble pungent comments on their ballots. 'I am living in a new Russia,' writes one."

"There are many controversies: 'Am in favor of impeaching Roosevelt.' 'Very definite Fascistic policy, with labor splintered (company unions)'. 'He is giving labor too much rope.' 'One year proves beyond doubt that Herbert Hoover was the only man who understood our troubles and the only man who knew the best way out.' 'He hasn't gone far enough. He's letting things slip back to where they were I hoped, but am disappointed.' 'He should grab the capitalistic bull by the horns instead of grabbing

Visitors and patrons are extended an invitation to be present.

Gettle Kidnapers Enter State Pen

Kirk, Williams and Kerrigan Arrive at San Quentin Prison

SAN QUENTIN, Calif. (AP)—Heavily guarded, James F. Kirk, Roy A. Williams and Larry Kerrigan, convicted kidnapers of William F. Gettle, arrived at the prison here Thursday to begin serving life sentences for the abduction of the Beverly Hills millionaire.

They will be assigned prison duties within a few days.

Attorney General Cummings, at Washington, is making a complete check to determine whether any of the three are wanted for a federal offense.

"We will do everything to see that these men are not set free on society again," he said.

FLAPPER FANNY SAYS:

Roosevelt Begins Message on Silver

Congress to Get Monetary Policy Within 48 Hours

Government to Purchase 13-4 Billion Ounces of Metal

25% CURRENCY BASE
Silver Percentage Higher Under Cleveland and T. Roosevelt

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Roosevelt, in agreement with senate silver advocates, will speed a message to congress proposing a bimetallic standard for the United States currency.

The president set about writing this message Thursday for dispatch probably within the next 48 hours. He was reported satisfied with the silver understanding.

It will mean the purchase of a huge store of silver, estimated at 1 billion 800 million ounces.

The agreement was reached between the president and the silver leaders of the senate at a conference Wednesday night in the White House.

Silver Bill Ready

WASHINGTON (AP)—Silver legislation at this session was decided upon Wednesday after a two hour conference between President Roosevelt and the senate silver bloc.

The president proposed to send a special message to congress within the next day or two recommending the program that has been in mind since a tentative understanding was reached with the silver group about two weeks ago.

The plan calls for permissive nationalization of domestic stocks of the metal and a mandatory declaration of policy that silver shall be purchased until it constitutes 25 per cent of the metallic monetary base.

The silver group was jubilant after the talk Wednesday and members said the proposed measure would probably be labeled an administration bill.

Senator Borah, Republican, Idaho, who heretofore had been pessimistic about the possibility of action at this session, said on leaving the White House:

"We're getting along fine. We've made more progress today than at any other time."

May Yield on Tax

The only question left for consideration it was said, was whether there would be a tax on those holding the domestic stocks of the metal. The majority of the silver group would like to see the tax proposal eliminated but were willing to accept it if Secretary Morgenthau or the President insisted.

Silver certificates would be issued upon the metal which must be acquired to bring the 25 per cent ratio. Silver now constitutes about 12 per cent of the reserve although it was more than 25 per cent during the administrations of Cleveland and Theodore Roosevelt.

Adams said the silver would be bought at the market price, but it would be given a value of $1.29 an ounce by the Treasury and a dollar silver certificate would be issued on each ounce.

The Treasury will take the profit resulting from the difference between the price at which the metal is purchased and the value upon it as a currency base.

Adams said the Treasury estimated it would have to purchase about 1,800,000,000 ounces to establish the reserve. He said the Treasury profit from devaluation of gold was figured in arriving at the 25-75 ratio.

"This means the purchase of more silver," he said.

The declaration of policy is to contain the assertion that the "secretary of the Treasury is hereby authorized and directed" to make the necessary silver purchases.

Should the world price of silver reach $1.29 an ounce before the reserve is acquired, the Treasury would be authorized to stop buying and to sell silver if it saw fit until the price fell below the $1.29 figure.

Senator Thomas, Democrat, Oklahoma, urged that the certificates be issued redeemable in a gold dollar's worth of silver but this suggestion was rejected, senators said, as well as the proposal by the Oklahoma that nations owing the United States war debts be allowed to make their June installments in silver.

We always thought the seven league boots were fairy tale products, but by the way he's been reported all over the world Dillinger must be wearing them.

Arrest in Robles Case Approaching

Little June Takes Officers Back Over Kidnapers' Trail

AUSTIN, Texas (AP)—Captain D. E. Hamer of the Texas Rangers said Thursday he expected an arrest in the June Robles case in this state within 12 hours after the arrival Friday of an operative from Chicago.

He declined to elaborate on his statement, which was made after a telephone communication with the Tucson sheriff by whom the child was found Monday after being held captive for 19 days in a desert "lomb."

Child Retraces Steps

TUCSON, Ariz. (AP)—June Robles retraced for sheriff's officers Wednesday the route traveled by her kidnapers, and authorities announced all evidence tended to confirm her story of spending 19 days in a coffin-like box in the desert.

The six-year-old girl, seized April 25 and held for $15,000 ransom, viewed the sinister-looking crypt 9 1/2 miles from Tucson in which she was found Monday and expressed the hope her abductors soon would be caught and "have some chains put about them."

Carlos G. Robles, assistant Pima county attorney and the little girl's uncle, Colby S. Farrar, undersheriff, and County Attorney Clarence Houston joined in saying the evidence tended to corroborate June's story.

"June was, by her own statement, in the box for the entire 19 days," Robles said. "We will take her word for it against the word of any others, at any time. Today she showed us the route the kidnapers took from the school to the pit. Chains were put on her ankles, and she was slept there with food and water, a mattress and a pillow. Those who declare she was taken to a house or a hut first, and later put in the pit are foolish."

While the hunt for clues went on, the second ransom note which caused the child's father to plead with the abductors to reduce their demands to $10,000 from $15,000 was made public.

Recovered by Fernando Robles just a week before June was found, it accused the father of "trying to trap us," and taunting that "we have allowed you to play with us."

"Now if you play dirty, we will be dirty," the father was warned.

Persistent rumors that at least part of the ransom had been paid were met by Carlos Robles with the statement:

"No ransom money, or any portion of the ransom has ever been paid. I myself this morning redeposited in the Consolidated National bank $5,000 on which I had been paying interest. Tomorrow morning I shall redeposit in the Southern Arizona bank $5,000 which was withdrawn from an account we have there."

Europe Anxious to Terminate War Between Paraguay and Bolivia

GENEVA, Switzerland (AP)—Great Britain called on the world Thursday to stop the war between Paraguay and Bolivia, and six nations fell into step with all eyes turned to the United States to see what that country would do.

The British representatives asked the council of the League of Nations to cable 17 nations and ask them to stop shipping arms and ammunition to the two countries which are fighting over the disputed Chaco province boundary.

Clergy Sell Stock

LONDON, England (AP)—In consequence of an outcry from clergymen all over the country, the Clergy Pensions Board has decided to withdraw its $50,000 investment from the armament firm of Vickers, Ltd.

The complaints were sharpened by the report of the League of Nations commission the Paraguay and Bolivia could not continue their war in the Chaco, if other nations, including members of the League, did not supply them with munitions. An official return showed that Britain had exported 5,000,000 rifle cartridges to Paraguay and 100 machine guns to Bolivia.

The investment in Vickers was made 40 years ago.

Rotary Leader to Speak Texarkana

Hope Members Will Go to Border City Thursday Night

TEXARKANA—Ed Johnson, first vice president of Rotary International, of Roanoke, Va., will be the guest speaker at the rotary meeting sponsored by the Texarkana Rotary club to be held Thursday night at the Hotel Grim.

Johnson is president of the Virginia Supply Company and the Roanoke Securities Corporation, and is an officer and director in several other business and financial institutions in Roanoke. He was born in Aurora, Ill., in 1882 and received his education at Alleghany Institute of Roanoke and at Purdue University.

He is a director of the Virginia State Chamber of Commerce and a past chairman of the Chamber of Commerce of the United States. He is a past president of the Roanoke Chamber of Commerce, a past president of the YMCA in Roanoke and a past president of the local boy scout council. He played an important part in the organization as the chairman of its first campaign, and is now vice-president of the fund.

Hope Rotarians will go to Texarkana in a body Thursday leaving Hotel Barlow at 8:20 p. m. There will be no luncheon Friday noon.

Trustees Recess College Hearing

Await Completion of Audit of Monticello A. & M. Finances

MONTICELLO, ARK. (AP)—After a two-day hearing the Board of Trustees' investigation of student charges against Frank Horsfall, president of the Agricultural and Mechanical College here, and John R. Richardson, trustee, was recessed Thursday until a financial audit of the institution's affairs is completed by the comptroller's office.

Most of the hearing was given over to the airing of student charges that Horsfall made "crude allusions to sex problems" in chapel talks. Horsfall, from the stand, denied the affair as "an open rebellion against organized authority."

The charges against Richardson were that he profited by business transactions with the college.

Ford Reported in Visit With Insull

Chicago Herald & Examiner Says Motor Magnate Went to Hospital

CHICAGO (AP)—The Herald & Examiner said Thursday that Henry Ford paid a secret visit Wednesday to the hospital room of Samuel Insull after Ford made a tour of the Century of Progress grounds.

There was no confirmation of their conversation, but it was said they talked about the Fair, about Thomas Edison who was close to both of them, and about Insull's court affairs.

Early in 1932 it was rumored but never confirmed that Insull sought a Ford loan because of the manufacturer's independence of Wall Street.

Southern Baptists Begin 79th Meet

8,000 Attend Opening Session at Fort Worth—F. D. R. Sends Word

FORT WORTH (AP)—Southern Baptists assembled here in their 79th annual convention were informed in the opening session Wednesday of the church's finances and spiritual condition.

The approximately 8,000 messengers and visitors were cheered by a telegram sent by Franklin D. Roosevelt which extended felicitations.

The Rev. M. E. Dodd of Shreveport, La., president of the convention, delivered his annual address; M. E. Aubrey, M. A. of London, England, general secretary of the Baptist Union of Great Britain and Ireland, brought greetings from overseas; the Rev. T. C. Holcomb, pastor of the First Baptist church of Oklahoma City, gave the annual sermon and reports of the Executive Committee, Education Committee and Relief and Annuity Board were received.

President Roosevelt said he held "a sincere hope that this convention, representing several million Christian men and women of our country will be most fruitful in its accomplishments."

He said the "need for practical application of the principles of Christ's teachings is of paramount importance," and that, in his opinion, "the churches of today have an unsurpassed opportunity for service to the nation."

The Rev. M. Dodd told the convention "we find ourselves humiliated in the matter of missionary zeal and activity." He said the Southern Baptists were doing "less and less for missions," and that our "diminishing fight" were not the "natural result of financial depression."

He complained that 82 per cent of the monies collected for all purposes of the church was used locally and only 13 per cent was sent beyond the borders of the respective states represented in the convention. He said that only 5 per cent is devoted "to

First Installment on 50 Millions Is Now Being Delivered

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Farm Administration announced Thursday it had paid out $9,112,589 in rental and benefit payments to cotton, tobacco and corn and hog farmers since the first of the year.

Payments to the cotton growers are being made at the rate of 1/4 million dollars daily, and the first installment of approximately 50 millions dollars will be received by the growers within six weeks.

Arkansas farmers have gotten $133,488 on 4,766 contracts.

Strikes Spread to Great Lakes Area

Water Transportation Impeded East, West and South

By the Associated Press

Labor disputes, which have tied up shipping along the Pacific coast and impeded activity at Gulf and New York ports, spread to the Great Lakes Wednesday.

Tugmen employed by the Great Lakes Towing Company were scheduled to go on strike Wednesday night. Strike votes were being taken at other lake ports.

The week-old strike of longshoremen had put Pacific coast shipping in a state of near paralysis. An appeal was made for federal troops to guard the waterfronts to enable non-union workers to unload 37 ships tied up in Elliott bay. To complicate the situation, 6,000 to 7,000 members of the sailors union and the masters mates and pilots' union walked out.

Many industrial plants dependent upon water transportation, including lumber mills at Longview, Wash., and Everett, Wash., were closed or about to close as a result of the dock workers' strike.

The great gasoline drought came to an end at Cleveland, Ohio, where filling stations were reopened after a nearly month-old strike of attendants.

REWARD IS POSTED

City Offers $100 for Information as to Mysterious Killer

Walter Billings, 45, carpenter and paperhanger, was shot and instantly killed about 9:30 last night at the rear of his home near Paisley school on the old Fulton highway by a chicken prowler who escaped in the darkness.

Officers were without clues Thursday in their efforts to track down the slayer, who made his get-away with 16 chickens after the shooting, leading authorities to believe that he had one or more accomplices.

noise at the rear of his home, Billings armed himself with a shotgun and went to investigate.

Shadow Fires Back

Seeing the outline of a shadow lurking in the darkness, Billings opened fire. The shadow retreated, shooting twice at Billings. Both loads struck him in the breast, shoulders and neck.

He staggered toward the house, and upon entering fell to the feet of his horrified wife, who had witnessed the flash of the gunfire from a rear porch.

Billings' only words were: "I'm shot," repeating it three times. He was dead five minutes later.

Immediately after the shooting officers were on the scene. A search about the house revealed no clues. The area around the Billings home was searched without success. Later in the night several negro homes in the city were raided by the police, but no one was taken into custody officers said Thursday.

Funeral on Thursday

Funeral and burial services were to be held Thursday afternoon at 5 o'clock at Friendship cemetery, four miles north of Rosston. In charge of services will be the Rev. W. H. Singlet, Washington pastor, assisted by the Rev. Wesley Thomas, Prescott minister.

"Pallbearers will be members of the W. O. W. lodge.

Surviving are his widow; two sons, Horace and Clifton Billings, of Hope; four brothers, Bird of Memphis, Tenn., Sam of Memphis, Texas, William of Big Spring, Texas and Robert of Missouri; one sister, Mrs. Maggie Johnson of Prescott, a granddaughter and a grandson.

Mr. Billings had made his home in Hempstead county for nearly 20 years, the last 11 of which had been spent in Hope.

A coroner's jury returned a verdict that: "Walter Billings came to his death by reason of gun shot wounds inflicted by parties unknown to us."

The jury was composed of Luther Higgins, V. E. Williams, W. G. Bright, Tom Butler, C. L. Griffith, Lex Helms, W. H. Spoonamore, Will Garner, and Dr. J. H. Weaver, Hempstead coroner.

BEHIND THE SCENES IN Washington

Senate Campaigns Are On, So Slush Fund Season Opens . . . Congress "Full" Stretches Middle Four Inches . . . Air Chief in Hot Spot . . . Mapes Called Best New Dealer of All—and He's Republican.

By RODNEY DUTCHER
NEA Washington Correspondent

WASHINGTON.—The Senate's big biennial slush fund show will soon be opening its 1934 season.

The boys will be passing a resolution by Senator Borah to create a committee to check the expenses and methods of senatorial campaigns, hoping to catch another slush-funder such as Bill Vane of Pennsylvania, who was deprived of his seat after the 1926 election because his primary campaign cost nearly a million dollars—nearly half as much as his chief opponents.

Pennsylvania probably again will be the committee's first port of call. Senator David A. Reed, friend and counsel of the Mellons, has been attacked by Gov. Gifford Pinchot, the relatively progressive opponent, for alleged huge expenditures in the Republican primary campaign.

Mrs. Cornelia Pinchot, the governor's gifted, red-headed wife, has been secretly approaching friendly progressive senators here, urging them to bust out on the Senate floor with charges of a big Reed slush fund.

If her charges are true—and they bear no corroboration—another sensation may be expected. She speaks of millions of letters and other pieces of literature and other expenses which indicate her belief that Reed is another million-dollar candidate.

Of course, no Senate committee could organize before May 15, date of the Pennsylvania primaries. Cornelia merely wanted to get out some anti-Reed propaganda and scare the Republican reactionaries whom she believes are flooding the state with Reed money.

This Took Some Pull
"Please qualify my nephew for a commission from the Naval Academy," wrote an old friend to an official who isn't in the navy, but sometimes has to deal with admirals.

The nephew was finishing his four-year term four inches under required height. Annapolis had accepted him on the theory that he would grow those four inches before graduation.

"What an I supposed to do—stretch him?" the official wired back. But he went to work on an admiral who had to visit the office, raising the navy, recalling the time it built $20,000,000 worth of cruisers which were obsolete before completion, stressing waste of taxpayers' money in useless training a youth who wouldn't grow, and otherwise expressing contempt.

It happened to seem like good policy to the admiral to do something about it. The nephew—I'm sworn not to tell his name—is about to become the shortest officer in the navy.

Air Chief in Hot Spot
Gen. Benny Foulois, chief of air corps, was the last one the House military sub-committee expected to put on the spot in its investigation of War Department expenditures. (The sub-committee Foulois of violating the law requiring competitive bidding, as to proposed purchase of $5,000,000 worth of airplanes, and commands Assistant Secretary of War Harry Woodring for spoiling the Foulois plan of non-competitive, negotiated contracts.)

Originally it regarded Foulois as a hero, victimized by the general staff, and expected to pin responsibility on the G. S. or Woodring. But study of the records shows Foulois testified that his first formal information of allocation of $7,500,000 in PWA funds for army aircraft was in a letter from the army chief of finance Nov. 29.

Whereas on October 27, Foulois had sent a memo to the assistant chief of staff which he called "a revised set-up of airplanes that should be purchased with the $7,500,000 allocated Public Works funds," and told exactly where the planes were to be built and constructed.

Air corps propaganda for years has been directed at the general staff. Recently, certain generals launched an undercover propaganda campaign against Woodring, suggesting that he would be indicted by a grand jury which investigated army contracts.

They probably will get him yet. But just now Woodring is top dog over Foulois, Chief of Staff Douglas MacArthur, and his many other enemies.

YOUR CHILDREN

By Olive Roberts Barton

It's the Children Who Suffer When Their Parents Quarrel

A mother asks me to write about mothers and fathers quarreling. "I have some neighbors," she says, "whose children live in perpetual misery because their parents fight, and the whole neighborhood can hear them."

No wonder these children are wretched. It is bad enough to have combative parents, but worse still when they know that everybody else knows about it. It is humiliating beyond words.

A week or two ago I read of three married couples quarreling so actively at a dance in a decent hotel that police aid had to be summoned.

A nice state of affairs. Whether or not they have any children, I do not know, but if they have, no comment is necessary. We ask our children to respect us. If we have no respect for ourselves, how can we expect our offspring to have it?

Taking Sides
But quarreling in the home before the family is even worse than making a show of ourselves out among strangers.

If there is any place on earth where there should be peace, it is around the hearth, or at the dinner table.

There is another angle to it, too, that is terrifically hard on the children. A mother expects them to side with her and hate their father. He expects them to side with him and hate their mother. And the poor kids caught between the devil and the sea-shore, don't know what to do.

Marriage brings its moments of disension and disagreement, of course. Few people can live together eternally without a difference of opinion now and then. It goes even deeper than that. Women are likely to be bored because they think they have the hard end of it and are not appreciated. There's John loafing about and not bringing in enough money to buy olo for the bread—or a new diamond ring—depending on the ideas of Sally, or Sue or Sarah.

Parent Conflict
John may be doing all he can but he can't seem to make good. A man's best isn't always his wife's idea of best, and heaven knows most of them are not gifted with the super-human energy it takes to make good these days.

Anyway, how can John, made as he is, compete with all the other smart men? How can he compete with unemployment? John is up against it right.

Sally on the other hand, sees that the less John works, the harder she has to. Not only that, but she has to do without almost everything. All work and no thanks and no nothing will curdle the cream of almost any disposition.

She broods and gets nervous and bottled up and then she is ready for attack. On the other hand, after John has worn himself out with work, or hunting work (it's all the same) he finds it insufficient. The burden is too great. He finds his utmost efforts criticized or unappreciated. And he, too, gets nervous and bottled up and then there is a battle.

Hate Won't Help
We are all human. Every husband and wife makes mistakes every day. Sins of omission rather than commission, or just nerves gone haywire.

But hate won't help; nastiness won't help; criticism won't help. It will ruin the children and make home a mad house. It is so useless. It shows weakness of character. We have to learn to endure and to co-operate with our mates, even though we think they have failed. It is marriage. It is parenthood. It is just common decency.

It has to be done.

DONNA of the BIG TOP

by BEULAH POYNTER
©1934 NEA SERVICE, INC.

BEGIN HERE TODAY

DONNA GABRIEL and MADELINE SIDDAL who call themselves "The Gabriel Sisters" are circus performers. Years earlier Madeline ran away from her grandfather's farm.

When Donna is injured by a fall from a trapeze Madeline arranges for her to be taken to GRANDFATHER SIDDAL's tent to recuperate. To please her partner Donna pretends to be Madeline. Though terrified of the lions and tigers she takes part in his animal act.

Convinced that Donna's letters to Madeline and discovers how she tricked him into marriage.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

CHAPTER XIX

WHEN the animals had been driven back through the covered runway and the uproar had subsided Renfroo batted Con. "What's the idea?" he demanded. "Trying to commit suicide or pull a new act?"

"Neither." The animal trainer strode through the sawdust-covered corridor that led from the "big top" to the dressing tent, brushing aside everyone who stood in his way.

Madeline was waiting at the door of her dressing room. Under the rouged cheeks were pale and her eyes black. "Say, what's the matter with you?" she began.

Con caught her wrist, jerked the door open with his other hand and almost flung her into the room. The two other women who shared the dressing room stared at him in amazement.

"Get out," he told them. Both left quickly, without a word. Occasional quarrels and even fights were to be expected between married couples and Con was notoriously temperamental.

Alone with a Madeline, Con became deadly calm. A smile that distorted his features, robbing them of all attractiveness, spread over his face. "So Donna is to be married?" he drawled.

"Why—why, yes. I told you that a long time ago."

"Yes, you told me! You told me before she had even thought of such a thing. Let's see—how many months ago was it? Long before you trapped me—"

"Don't you say I trapped you!" Madeline rasped.

"Why not? You knew that if I hadn't thought Donna was going to marry that rube cousin of yours I wouldn't have married you. So you lied. You told me she'd written you that they were engaged—"

"You just said they're going to be married," she broke in. "I don't know what you're talking about! Now you say I lied—"

"I'm talking about this." Con extracted the letter from his pocket and flung it at her. "Oh, I read it! If you can convince me that Donna Gabriel ever wrote you she was going to be married before this letter came you can convince me I'm the King of England! Good God, you women are more treacherous than tigers. I suppose she's marrying him now because you married me."

MADLINE burst into hysterical laughter. "Oh, all the content! Don't tell me you still believe Donna would ever have had you! She couldn't see you for dust at any time, and I knew it! Yes, I lied when I said they were going to be married. Why not? I was fool enough to think that if you knew you could never have her you'd snap out of it and begin to get something out of life—"

"With you?"

"Yes, with me. It's only your damned pride and conceit that's eating you now. That's all it ever was between you and Donna—and don't tell me any different. I've lived with you long enough to know you'll never love any one but yourself. The only reason you wanted Donna was because you couldn't have her. I wish to God she'd married you! I don't want you. Not any more!"

She dropped into a chair, laid her head on the shelf before the mirror and burst into angry tears. Tears were a defense Con could not combat. He paced the little room, whistled disconsolately and then swung on his heels and left. Because the scene still rankled and because both were stubborn, the strained situation continued.

Con had never known humility. Never in his life had he admitted himself in the wrong. The overtures toward reconciliation would have to come from Madeline, and Madeline, in the throes of jealousy, convinced herself that she hated Con and did not care if they never spoke again.

Consequently the breach widened. Con treated Madeline with a supercilious courtesy that infuriated her and fanned to a higher flame her hatred and jealousy. Probably during those days when she completely ignored him he came nearer to loving her than at any other time.

Lucy, the Bengal, was the only one of his beasts Con really cared for. Lucy could not be tamed.

AND it was because he had met his match in this jungle cat that Con loved her.

"Better watch out," Renfroo warned. "I don't have to tell you there are some cats you can't train. That beast is a devil. You'll never lick her."

"I will if it's the last thing I do! I'll make her crawl on her belly and like it."

If Madeline had learned a lesson from the Bengal tiger she might have won Con's love. If she had continued to be aloof, cold and distant he would in time have forgiven what she had done and found it worth while to try to reinstate himself.

But Madeline was a woman in love. After a week's coolness, when she alternated between hating Con and aching for him, she smothered her pride and begged his forgiveness.

"It was because I loved you," she sobbed. "I know it was a rotten thing to do but I was just crazy and I knew Donna would never marry you. I'm telling you the truth, the God's truth! Donna had a crush on Bill Siddal the first time she went to visit my grandfather and I knew if she and Bill were thrown together they'd get married. You've got to forgive me, Con. I can't go on like this! It's just killing me to have you treat me this way."

"I suppose it was your idea to have Donna go to the farm after the accident?"

"Well, it was a lot better than having her stay in a hospital and it saved expense—"

"And threw her and your precious cousin together! Just what does your grandfather think of Donna's sponging on him this way?"

"Why, he thinks she is me—or he loves her because—"

"I heard you the first time. So your grandfather thinks Donna is you! Haven't you told me he is well-to-do?"

"Yes. Not rich, but the farm is worth something. He's comfortably fixed. Why?"

"It strikes me that in your anxiety to marry your partner off so you could get your clutches on me you've thrown away your inheritance."

"I don't know what you mean. Donna would never—you don't think Donna would influence him into leaving her the farm, do you?"

"Would she have to do any influencing? He thinks she is his granddaughter, you say. She's marrying your cousin. You don't suppose he is going to let the fortune, such as it is, slip through his hands? If Donna isn't unscrupulous enough or clever enough to get the old man's money will be hers, this cousin will think up a way to do it."

Madeline's lips curled scornfully. "And you claimed to love Donna! I don't know anything about Bill Siddal, but I do know Donna. She wouldn't rob me and no man could induce her to try to cheat me out of anything Grandfather might leave."

"I wouldn't be too sure! I suppose you kept that letter?"

"No. I destroyed it. But just to satisfy you I'll write Donna and ask her what she intends to do if Grandfather should die."

"You think she'd tell you?"

"I know she would."

"If she does, for your own protection be sure to keep the letter."

Until this conversation Madeline had given little thought to what her grandfather possessed. Now the farm and livestock and the Siddal bank account became of vast importance as she realized that Con considered her an heiress. After Madeline had written to Donna, first wishing her happiness, then tactfully inquiring what the situation would be if Grandfather Siddal should die, she began to wonder if Con were not a better judge of character than herself. Was Donna, in marrying Bill Siddal, looking forward to a future that included a party and valuable as well as a home and husband?

GLORIFYING YOURSELF

Cool Foot Creams Relieve Burning Sensation

Foot troubles which, goodness knows, are bad enough at any time of the year, seem to be even more annoying during the summer months. So if you have tired, aching feet, now is the time to consult a reliable foot specialist.

Corns never should be cut with a razor, miniature scissors or any other medicine chest implement. Have them treated and finally removed by an expert. Bunions, too, require medical attention, and so do callouses if they are in an advanced stage. Of course, if you have very small callouses on the backs of the heels they can be removed by pumice. Rub them lightly with the pumice after the feet have been bathed and dried. Don't try to remove an entire callous the first night—rubbing the dead, hardened skin off a little at a time is the right way.

There are other satisfactory home treatments for feet, too. Soothing, cooling foot creams that go far toward eliminating that tired, burning sensation can be used at night after your bath, and, if you like, during the day as well. One of them is as cool as ice and as pleasant to use as your favorite face cream. Massage it into the skin on your feet, beginning at the toes and rubbing upward to the ankles.

Walk a Mile Before You Buy Shoes. The right home treatments and shoes that actually fit are two factors which insure summer foot comfort. When you set out to buy new sports, street and evening shoes for the hot months, go to a salesman who will measure your feet instead of getting your size from the shoes which you're already wearing.

When buying street shoes, it's a good idea to walk a mile before you go in to try them on. Your feet swell a trifle after a long walk in hot weather and if you buy shoes while they're in that condition, the new shoes always will be comfortable no matter how long you have been on or how far you walk.

Sports shoes usually come in wider widths than street models. In that case, you can get them a half size shorter than you generally wear. However, remember that most women need all shoes a half size larger during the summer months. In other words, don't buy shoes until your feet have been accurately measured. Stockings should be exactly the right size. If they're too long, they'll wrinkle around the toes, causing blisters. If too short, they're apt to crowd the toes, making them ache. And, as a final word, never wear stockings a second day without washing. A fresh pair each and every day is the rule.

London has a children's beauty parlor, where girls of nine years may have their eyebrows plucked, nails tinted, and hair waved.

Going Home
We never see a little house
Clasped closely to the earth.
All haled with Mother's smiles
And gay with children's mirth.
But what we think how blest is he
Who, when night's shadows come,
Can turn toward such a happy place
And say "I'm going home."
In lofty halls and spacious rooms
Lives sometimes grow apart;
But in the little homes love flowers
Most freely in the heart.
We never see a little house
All aureoled with love
But what we think how blest are they
Who, though far off they may roam,
Can turn about some golden day,
Cross plains, hills, ocean's foam,
And, hasting to that peaceful spot,
Can say, "I'm going home."

Interest on Crop Loans Cut to 5%

Reduction From 5 1/2% Announced by Prescott Credit Association

E. H. Weaver, secretary-treasurer of the Prescott Production Credit association has just received word from Governor W. J. Myers of the Farm Credit Administration, Washington, D. C., that the interest rate on new loans from production credit associations has been reduced from 5 1/2 to 5 per cent.

According to Mr. Weaver the new interest rate becomes effective immediately on all new loans and advances made by the association and will be applicable until further notice.

"The new interest rate will not affect loans already advanced in full," Mrs. Weaver said. "These will continue to bear the rate of interest prevailing at the time the loan was closed. The interest charges on loans from the associations are collected when the loans mature. The Prescott Production Credit association is now making loans on acceptable crop and chattel security to farmers in Hempstead and Nevada counties.

"The reduction of the interest to 5 per cent on the new loans," Mrs. Weaver continued, "is made possible by the sale of Federal intermediate credit bank debentures to investors at an unusually low rate of interest. The association gets money to loan to farmers from the Federal intermediate credit bank of St. Louis.

"The lowering of the interest rate on new loans to 5 per cent is the second reduction in two months, the rate having been reduced from 6 to 5 1/2 per cent on March 16.

"According to Governor Myers," Mr. Weaver said, the Federal intermediate credit bank is passing on immediately to farmer-borrowers from production credit associations the saving made possible by lower cost of getting money. The confidence of investors in the security of the intermediate credit banks has been such that the banks are able to get money to lend at the lowest discount rate in their history. Governor Myers says that the resulting low rate of interest on production credit association loans is enabling farmer-borrowers to save thousands of dollars on the costs of their farm operations each year. If the association makes sound loans, and loans that are collectible, an adequate supply of low cost money will continue to be available."

Ford V-8 Wins in 250-Mile Contest

Lou Meyer Takes Oakland Race With Average of 77.68

OAKLAND, Calif.—Battling for a cash prize of $1,500, Lou Meyer, a leading contender for the 500-mile sweepstakes at Indianapolis Decoration Day, took first place in a Ford V-8 in the 250-mile stock car race at the Oakland speedway May 6, from a field of 20 entries.

Meyers time for the race, which was supervised by the Contest Board of the American Automobile Association, was 3 hours, 13 minutes and 4.6 seconds, and his average speed for the course was 77.68 miles per hour.

Sam Palmer, also driving a Ford V-8 took the second prize of $750, and also hung up the fastest driving time for a single mile lap of 81 miles per hour. Denny dePaolo, Ted Horn, Mel Konealy and Al Gordon, all in Ford V-8s, took the next four places in the event. Four other drivers finished in the money. Eight of the 20 entries were Fords, the other 12 being of four other makes.

"I won the race," said Meyer at the finish, "because my Ford V-8 had tremendous pickup, power and speed and was able to keep going at high speed for the entire 250 miles. It's a great car to drive and I ought to know because I have won two tough races in Ford V-8s this year."

Twelve thousand persons turned out for the race which was run on the Oakland banked-curved oval under a brilliant California sun. No accidents of any nature marred the event.

Throughout the grind Meyer drove a steady course cautious race. In the early laps the race appeared to be between Palmer and Gordon, but just after he caught up with Palmer in the 108th lap Gordon lost time in the pits and Palmer streaked ahead.

Soon afterwards, Meyer, who had been trailing up to this point, took the lead and never was headed. From the halfway mark the race settled down into a three cornered battle between Meyer, Palmer and dePaolo, with only a few seconds separating the three during most of the latter half of the race. Nearing the finish all three contenders opened their throttles, averaging more than 80 miles an hour for the last three laps.

Throughout the race the leaders thrilled the crowds with the way they guided their cars through the traffic of slower cars on the track, the quick acceleration of the Ford V-8 giving them precious seconds each time it was necessary for them to slow down.

Konealy, fifth place winner, set a refueling record, when he appeared at the pits for his first refueling, after 161 miles.

British Not to Ban New Black Shirts

Refuse to Dignify Fascists by Recognizing Organization

LONDON, Eng.—With the government determined that the Fascist movement should not be dignified with the status of a major political controversy, the House of Commons refused Wednesday even to consider the bill banning wearing of political uniforms.

Commander Oliver Locker-Lampson proposed the bill and Lord Winterton opposed it. Each talked 10 minutes.

The conversation centered about Sir Oswald Mosley who seeks to raise a Fascist movement in England and some of whose followers wear black shirts. Locker-Lampson declared Mosley "dressed up like a continental dancing master, masquerades like Mussolini with his dirty shirts, goes to Italy for the name of the organization, and to Germany for his bullying spirit."

Lord Winterton, however, argued that the bill was impracticable because a uniform for political purposes could not be defined. He said that instead of damaging Mosley, the proposed bill would confer a sense of martyrdom on all his followers.

The House declined to receive the bill.

Locker-Lampson offered his bill in an effort to force the government to make a decision on the Fascist movement. Mosley and his followers say they expect to take over the power in Great Britain by 1937.

Mosley and 13 other men founded their organization in October, 1932, and their objectives include: The assumption of power then giving the nation and empire a "trial period" of four years, with a plebiscite at the end to determine whether the people wanted a continuance of Black Shirt rule. Then says Rex Templett, director of Mosley's publicity, if the people vote against the Fascists the present British system of government would take up the old way of things.

"England probably will have another depression in 1936," said Templett, "and the Socialists will win the general election and that gives us our chance. You see, the Socialists will no last more than six months, the way we figure it and then, with a major economic crisis, the people will turn to the Fascists, and we will step in and save the nation."

Wouldn't You Be Proud of a Car That Could Perform Like This?

FORD V-8

Speeds from Memphis to Little Rock

A Distance of 137 Miles in 93 MINUTES!

The marvelous proof developed by this test was that of stamina, low oil and gas consumption, braking power and all-around ability of the Ford V-8—TO REALLY "TAKE IT."

The actual time taken to make this run between West Memphis and Whitney Harb, Inc., in North Little Rock was 93 minutes and 4 seconds. This distance between these two points is 137 miles.

The automobile was taken out of stock from a recent shipment of the Ford V-8 1934 Models. E. L. Fausett drove the car at an average rate of 88 and 4-10 miles per hour, and at several stretches on the road, hit a high speed of 98 miles per hour. The car used exactly eleven gallons of gasoline for the trip, averaging 12 1/2 miles per gallon. Oil tested at the finish was found to be one quart less than that with which it started. This gas and oil mileage can be best appreciated by those who know that at this rate of speed the motor consumes approximately twice the amount of fuel used at ordinary speed. The car is now on display in the showrooms of Whitney Harb, Inc., and stands as it was when it finished the test run. The public is invited to inspect this record-breaking Ford V-8.

Aren't such demonstrations as this, conclusive proof that the Ford V-8 is the outstanding motor car of the world—is truly "the car without a price class?"

Spring Practice Is Begun by Bobcats

25 Candidates Issued Equipment—Coaches Optimistic

Reports from Coach Teddy Jones Thursday indicated that spring football practice was well under way at the local high school. Approximately 25 candidates for the 1934 edition of the Bobcat football team received equipment last week, and regular practice was begun Monday under directions of Coaches Teddy Jones and Jimmy Jones. Because of a ruling of the Arkansas Athletic Association the spring work may continue only two weeks, so a great deal of emphasis has been stressed on fundamentals in the practice sessions thus far.

Present indications are that the Bobcats will present a big line and a fast shifty backfield next year. The most promising looking candidates in the line are two hefty 190 pound tackles, Brown and Stone, ably supported by Kesterson who is capable of chugging any hole in the line. Hitchcock another hefty lineman is being tried at center to replace Hugh Chamberlain who was lost to the team and who made the All-State second selection.

43 Are Killed in Belgian Explosion

Officials May Seal Up Dead in Mine to Stop Spread of Flames

BRUSSELS, Belgium.—(AP)—Forty-three miners were believed to have lost their lives Wednesday in an explosion and fire in a coal mine here. Ten bodies were recovered, and five more were brought to the surface in a critical condition.

Flames followed a fire-damp explosion, and officials late Wednesday were considering sealing up the mine to extinguish the conflagration, since little hope was held for rescue of the remaining men.

Issues Injunction on School Bonds

Pine Bluff Chancellor Holds 18-Mill Tax Is General

PINE BLUFF, Ark.—In a decision expected to have a sensational effect not only here but throughout the state, Chancellor H. R. Lucas announced an injunction Monday restraining County Treasurer Claude Pledger from paying out any of the Pine Bluff School District's 18-mill general tax funds toward retirement of approximately $30,000 worth of bond principal and interest due in August.

With probable receivership proceedings discussed if the chancellor's decision is upheld by the Arkansas Supreme Court, the disclosure of the ruling created considerable excitement.

Suit to obtain the injunction was brought by R. C. Cutrell and E. M. Long, taxpayers, through City Attorney Evan W. Crawford. The plaintiffs alleged that at the school election last month an 18-mill tax was voted for general school purposes but that no tax was voted for retirement of bonded indebtedness, although provisions for such payments were made on the ballot.

The School Board, through Chairman F. G. Bridges, contended in an answer that the 18-mill school tax voted covered all school funds, including retirement of bonded indebtedness.

Chancellor Lucas injected still another angle into the case when he held that the School Board was without power to bind the district to the payment of bond indebtedness out of general school taxes unless previously

Don't Shoot! I'm Not Dillinger

Ralph Altsman doesn't mind looking like John Dillinger, but he hopes police will stop to ask a few questions before they shoot. A striking double of the No. 1 outlaw, Altsman, a transient, has been arrested seven times and held until his fingerprints proved his innocence. He is shown here in St. Paul, where he last was detained.

authorized to do so by the voters.

In revealing some excerpts from the opinion: Chancellor Lucas said: "As shown by the ballot in this case, a general school tax was voted. No building tax was voted nor bond tax voted, although provisions for them were made on the ballot. Had the ballot been prepared as contemplated and designated by law, affecting the tax question, it would have been settled. I am sure, without recourse to the court, there are other funds—poll tax, state three-mill tax, tobacco tax, and severance tax—that will be collected and paid to the treasurer of the district which are not involved in this proceedings and all could be used to take care of the interest and principal on bonds, as far as this court is concerned."
